

Pin the Sunglasses on the Donkey

What's a party without games? At Jack and Jane's party, they were oh, so clever and decided to have a Pin the Sunglasses on the Donkey competition.

Number	Kid
	Jack
	Sam
	Callie
	Jane
	Kim
	Tisha
	Marie
	Dave
	Billy

Help! The kids can't remember who had which sunglasses. Luckily, dad took a video of the game. Below is a rundown of the video. Your job is to fill in the table with each person's correct number.

Jane, the birthday girl, began the game, pinning a bow directly on top of the donkey's head.

Next up was Tisha, who spins in circles for fun and nailed the sunglasses smack dab on the donkey's eyes! After watching Tisha do so well, the boys began demanding to take a shot at it. Dave stared at the donkey, spun three times, and got close, but Tisha was still holding out as the winner! Marie jumped up to go, but Billy stepped in front of her with his sunglasses in hand, ready to go. But Billy missed, pinning his sunglasses further away than anyone else. While Billy was pouting about pinning the sunglasses on the tail (and NOT the eyes), Marie was up. Marie never stopped smiling, even when she pinned the sunglasses on the poor donkey's leg. Jack and Sam were next in line, and they tossed a coin to see who would go next. Even though Jack lost, Sam let him go anyway. After all, he was the birthday boy. Unfortunately for the birthday boy, his sunglasses weren't anywhere near the donkey's eyes. Sam didn't do much better, but he argued that if it were pin the tail on the donkey, he would have won fair and square! Kim, too distracted by sipping her lemonade, barely even got the sunglasses on the donkey at all! Finally, Callie was up. She thought she would be funny and put her sunglasses on a pool noodle and pin it from afar. But alas, the second pinner stayed the winner!
